Restaurants and Dining in Phnom
Penh

The Royal Palace and Silver
Pagoda

Dining Out in Phnom Penh... Phnom Penh (map) offers an excellent selection of dining venues ranging from fine Khmer and French dining to American style bar & grills and budget noodle & rice shops. But the emphasis is of course on Khmer (Cambodian) food. Khmer cuisine shares many similarities with other Southeast Asian foods, including dishes such as curries, sates and fish-based meals, but Khmer cookery tends to be much more delicately spiced than other regional cuisines and is rarely spicy hot. Chinese food is also very popular and Phnom Penh sports a goodly number and range of Chinese places from budget-priced noodle shops strung along 136 near Phsar Thmey to top-end Chinese restaurants such as Xiang Palace at the InterContinental Phnom Penh Hotel.

Most western cuisines are well-represented in Phnom Penh - pizzerias, home-cooked British and American food, contemporary delis and cafés, fine German, Italian and especially French restaurants. Given Cambodia's long relationship with France and France's gastronomic traditions, it is no surprise some of Phnom Penh's finest dining venues offer French cuisine. Many of the restaurants catering to tourists and visitors are clustered into certain areas of town. Dozens of restaurants and bars line the riverfront dining and shopping area near the Royal Palace and Boeung Keng Kang 1 is dotted with local and foreign restaurants, especially along Street 278. Budget eateries and bars can be found along Street 93 next to the Boeung Kak Lake, an area popular with backpackers.
